

District to mark no-parking zones with cones

In recent months, district leaders have come to realize there are times when parking issues arise on campus.

With very active and involved students, OCS tends to have many evening and weekend visitors and as a result, parked cars often line campus roadways, restricting traffic flow. This makes it difficult when emergency vehicles, such as ambulances responding to an injury during gameplay, need to pass through. Also, if a fire alarm is triggered, the district must evacuate a building and have it cleared for re-entry by the fire department.

This process is hampered when our roadways are congested, and it also makes it challenging to exit events and the campus safely.

Although the campus has always had designated fire lanes painted with hash marks, time and Central New York weather have worn the paint, making it difficult to see. All visitors are asked to park only in designated parking areas, even if it means a longer walk to their destination, for the safety of everyone on campus.

OCS Athletics thanks you in advance for your cooperation.
